

1. What are the details for registering?

- a. Participants must be sponsored by a school or community organization. Teams and Indy poets must be sponsored by a mentor or coach who works at a school or community organization.
- b. If a school is registering a team of more than three poets but less than 10, those participants should be registered with the school team. If a school has more than 10 poets, the additional participants can register as one of the school's additional 3 indy poet slots.
- c. Participants on school teams must be enrolled in that institution and not yet graduated within that academic year.

2. What is the difference between registering as a team or as an Indy poet?

- a. An indy poet is an individual. That means they are repping themselves and themselves only. They do not participate as a part of a team. They will not have the option of creating a group piece like a team would.
- b. A team has the option to create a group piece together. A group piece has 4 poets. The group piece round is the 5th round in preliminaries, and is optional to perform a group piece.
- c. Whether a participant is a part of a team or an Indy poet, teams and Indys will be required to participate in 2 preliminary bouts. Indy poets and participants on a team all have the same abilities for voting and being casted for votes.

3. What if I do not feel comfortable being a part of my school's team?

- a. We understand that sometimes a school may not be the safest place for a student. If you do not feel comfortable being a part of your school's team, please reach out to Asia (asia@youngchicagoauthors.org), so we can assist.
- b. Participants can also register to participate as a part of a community organization who is sponsoring a team or indys.

10. How do I prepare for the Rooted and Radical festival?

- a. Rooted and Radical is a poetry performance festival, so participants must prepare original pieces of writing to perform in front of an audience. We know this can be a scary thought! Young Chicago Authors has several different resources on our resource page to support your writing of original poems to showcase in the festival. We also have programs such as Check the Method and Every Word Counts happening on Saturdays and our regularly scheduled Wordplay happening on Tuesday if you want continued writing and performance practice until the festival and afterwards.
